

Intermediate module overview

Welcome to the second part of the intermediate level about personal presentation skills!

In this module, you will develop your capacities and skills to create an appealing and interesting personal presentation that will capture the other person's attention.

The learning objectives for this module are:

apply communication strategies in a personal presentation;

refine the communication style to better promote your skills and talents;

identify the best practices for recording a presentation video;

create a personal presentation video.

Both videos and activities can be done at your own pace and at any time or place depending on your availability.

You will also have the opportunity to watch a series of videos and so some activities that will allow you to put into practice what you have learned.

In total, it is estimated that it will take three hours to develop the module.

This module will have two components: In the first one, six videos with some tips to create an appealing personal presentation will be available.

Then, over four videos, some good practices for recording your own personal presentation video will be presented.

For each video, the respective transcript will be made available.

At the end, two activities will be proposed:

In activity one, you will need to consider two examples of presentations and decide which one is more interesting and appealing.

In activity two, we propose that you record your own presentation video.

For each of the activities, we will provide you with a checklist that will help you reflect and self-evaluate your work.

With this module, you will gain:

Knowledge regarding the tips and the best practices for presenting you and your talent;

Ability to create a personal video presentation;

And last, but not the least, confidence to create an appealing personal presentation.
